District of New-York, ss.

Be it remembered, That on the ninth day of February, in the thirty-fifth year of the independence of the United States of America, Thomas Pope, of the said district, hath deposited in this office the title of a book, the right whereof he claims as author, in the words and figures following, to wit:

“A Treatise on Bridge Architecture; in which the superior advantages of the Flying Pendent Lever Bridge, are fully proved: with an historical account and description of different Bridges erected in various parts of the world, from an early period, down to the present time. By Thomas Pope, Architect and Landscape Gardener.

Exulting Science now disdains
The ties of custom’s proud controul,
And breaks the rude and barbarous chains,
That fettered down the free-born soul.

In conformity to the act of the Congress of the United States of America, entitled “an act for the encouragement of learning, by securing the copies of maps, charts and books, to the authors and proprietors of such copies, during the times therein mentioned;” and also to an act entitled “an act supplementary to an act entitled an act for the encouragement of learning, by securing the copies of maps, charts, and books, to the authors and proprietors of such copies, during the times therein mentioned, and extending the benefits thereof to the arts of designing, engraving, and etching historical and other prints.”

Charles Clinton,
Clerk of the District of New-York.
