Bascom, F. Cycles of Erosion in the Piedmont Province of Pennsylvania.
Jour. Geol., vol. 29, pp. 540-559, Chicago, 1921.
Describes five peneplanes in Pennsylvania all of which should be represented in Lehigh County although only a few localities within the county are specifically mentioned. Peneplanes described are Kittatinny (1800'-'1160'), Schooley (1300'-'900'), Honeybrook (860'-'700'), Harrisburg (800'-'500'), and Early Brandywine (500'-'380').

83 pp., illustrated, Philadelphia, 1921.
Contains considerable information concerning the early iron industry in the Lehigh Valley.

1922

Berlin, Alfred F. The Bake Oven Knob.
Describes the geology of the Bake Oven. Most of the information was obtained from the writings of Prof. E. H. Williams, Jr.

Bowles, Oliver. The Technology of Slate.
Deals with the technology of the slate industry but contains numerous descriptions of geologic features observed in quarries in Lehigh County.

Gordon, Samuel G. The Mineralogy of Pennsylvania.
Describes all the minerals known to occur in the State and gives list of minerals and specific localities for each county with literature references. Cites many minerals from Lehigh County.

Translated from the French manuscript in Library of Congress, 103 pp., 5 plates, Haverford, 1921.
Traveled from Bethlehem to Reading, stopping at Allentown and Trexlerstown, etc. Brief descriptions of physical features. Refers to Big Spring, 1/2 mile west of Trexler's Tavern.

Wherry, Edgar T. and Shannon, Earl V. Crocidolite from Eastern Pennsylvania.
A blue mineral, previously called glaucophane, occurring near Limeport and in other localities, is determined to be crocidolite.

Wyer, Samuel S. The Smithsonian Institution's Study of Natural Resources Applied to Pennsylvania's Resources.
150 pp., Washington, 1922.
Interesting generalizations concerning Pennsylvania's resources. Discussions of limestones, lime, and cement apply to Lehigh County.

1923

Berlin, Alfred Franklin. The Arrowhead.
Lehigh County Historical Society for 1923, pp. 47-63, Allentown, 1923.
